Howard advises a variety of business types on all aspects of federal income taxation and at all stages of the business life cycle, including formations, reorganizations, mergers and acquisitions, and dissolutions. She develops tax approaches and solutions for businesses and individuals and in representing clients embroiled in tax controversies before the Internal Revenue Service and state tax authorities. She also counsels tax-exempt organizations in connection with qualification for exempt status, state tax exemption matters, and with general legal and governance concerns.

“We are thrilled to have Crystal join the Husch Blackwell tax team,” said Joseph Pickart, the head of Husch Blackwell's Tax practice. “Substantively, she is an excellent lawyer with a wide-ranging knowledge of tax law, and just as important to us, she shares our client-focused, practical approach to the law. Crystal's arrival definitely enhances our tax team's ability to advise clients on just about any federal or state tax issue that is of importance in today's ever-changing business environment.”

Howard received her Juris Doctorate cum laude and her Master of Laws in Taxation from the University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Law, where she served as a Case Note and Review Editor for The Urban Lawyer and was a member of the UMKC Law Review. She received her undergraduate degree from William Jewell College
