

Services

Banking & Finance
Government
Solutions

Professional

KYLE J. GILSTER
WASHINGTON:
202.378.2303
OMAHA:
402.964.5030
KYLE.GILSTER@
HUSCHBLACKWELL.COM

Stimulus Bill Update: Additional SBA Relief Available to Coronavirus-Impacted Small Businesses

An additional estimated $377 billion in Small Business Administration (SBA) relief will be available to eligible small businesses as a result of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act. The signing of the CARES Act into law by the President is imminent. This much anticipated stimulus package:

provides loan forgiveness grants to small businesses and non-profits to maintain existing workforce and to help pay for other expenses like rent, mortgage and utilities;

offers SBA emergency grants of up to $10,000 to provide immediate relief for small business operating costs; and subsidizes 6 months of payments for small businesses with existing SBA loans.

SBA 7(a) paycheck protection program

Under the SBA's 7(a) loan program, an estimated $349 billion has been allocated to the Paycheck Protection Program.

Who is eligible?

Generally, businesses, 501(c)(3) non-profits, 501(c)(19) veteran's organizations, and Tribal business concerns with not more than 500 employees (and in certain instances a larger number of employees), as well as sole-proprietors, independent contractors and other self-employed individuals are eligible.

Typically, the SBA also determines eligibility by measuring a small businesses' affiliates; however, the SBA has waived its affiliation rules for businesses in the hospitality and restaurant industries, for franchises that are approved on the SBA's Franchise Directory, and for small businesses that receive financing through the Small Business Investment Company (SBIC) program. Of note, the scope of the affiliation waiver for SBIC-financed small businesses is being explored and will likely be the subject of additional SBA guidance.

The SBA is also waiving its credit-elsewhere test, meaning that small businesses with credit available elsewhere are eligible for loans under the Paycheck Protection Program.

What are the key program details?

Eligible enterprises may obtain a loan of up to $10 million. The loan amount is calculated by reference to payroll costs incurred by the business and roughly equal to 2.5 times the company's average monthly payroll costs.

Loan proceeds may only be used to support payroll (not including compensation above $100,000 in wages), such as employee salaries, paid sick or medical leave, insurance premiums, and mortgage, rent, and utility payments. Borrowers are required to certify that the loan is necessary due to the uncertainty of current economic conditions caused by COVID-19; that they will use the funds to retain workers and maintain payroll, lease, and utility payments; and that they are not receiving duplicative funds for the same uses from another SBA program (e.g., the Economic Injury Disaster Loan [EIDL] program).

No collateral or personal guarantees are required, loan payments are deferred for at least 6 months (and not more than one year), there is no prepayment fee, and all fees are waived.

Most notably, loans made under this program are eligible for loan forgiveness. The borrower must apply for forgiveness with its lender directly. The amount forgiven is based upon a formula, taking into consideration—for example—employee retention and amounts spent by the borrower on eligible payroll costs, mortgage interest payments, rent payments and utility payments during a specific period of time. Any amounts forgiven are not taxable to the borrower as gross income. Any loan amounts not forgiven at the end of one year must be paid by the borrower over a period of up to 10 years at a maximum interest rate of 4 percent.

What is the application process?

Loans under the Paycheck Protection Program will be made through lenders that have been approved by the SBA. Applicants work directly with those lenders. The SBA will guarantee these loans. The SBA has an online tool that helps small businesses connect with SBA-approved lenders. Additionally, the U.S. Treasury has the authority to approve additional lenders. Business owners can also check with their local SBA District Office for an updated list of approved lenders participating in the Paycheck Protection Program.

Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin has indicated that lenders should be able to issue small business loans under the Paycheck Protection Program by the end of next week.

Emergency EIDL grants

Earlier this month, the SBA announced that in designated states and territories small businesses and private, non-profit organizations that are suffering substantial economic injury as a result of COVID-19 may qualify for EIDLs. EIDLs are low-interest working capital loans—up to $2,000,000—made directly by the SBA. In connection with this stimulus package:

Tribal businesses, cooperatives, and companies that are owned by an ESOP with fewer than 500 employees, as well as sole proprietors and independent contractors, are also now eligible for EIDLs; personal guarantees on advances and loans under $200,000 are not required (but will still be required on advances and loans over $200,000);

the requirement that an applicant must have been in business for one year is waived; and the credit-elsewhere test is waived, meaning that small businesses that have credit available elsewhere are now eligible for EIDLs.

The stimulus package also establishes an estimated $10 billion Emergency Grant under the EIDL Program. Key details about this emergency grant include:

an eligible entity that has applied for an EIDL due to COVID-19 may request an advance on that loan, up to $10,000;

the applicant must certify that it is an eligible entity under the SBA guidelines;

the SBA is required to distribute the emergency advance to the applicant within three (3) days of the applicant's request;

the advance may be used towards paid sick leave to employees, payroll, increased costs of materials, rent or mortgage payments, and repayment of other obligations that cannot be met due to revenue losses; and the advance does not need to be repaid, even if the applicant is subsequently denied for an EIDL loan.

SBA subsidy of existing small business loans

Small businesses with existing SBA loans through the SBA 7(a), 504 and Microloan programs are also afforded relief under the CARES Act. The SBA will be subsidizing those loans, up to an estimated amount of $17 billion. Key details about this subsidy program include:

the SBA will pay the principal, interest, and any associated fees that are owed on existing covered loans for a six (6) month period, starting on the next payment due date;

for covered existing loans that are already on deferment, the SBA will begin making these payments with the first payment after the deferral; and

SBA loans that are made under these programs—not including the Paycheck Protection Program—within the next six (6) months will also receive a full six (6) months of loan payments by the SBA.

Small businesses with these existing covered loans should contact their lender directly for additional details regarding this SBA subsidy program.

Contact us

The CARES Act contemplates that the SBA will issue additional regulations and guidance in connection with this unprecedented economic relief to small businesses. We continue to monitor these rapid developments. Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact Jessica Zeratsky, Kyle Gilster or your Husch Blackwell attorney.

Husch Blackwell has launched a COVID-19 response team providing insight to businesses as they address challenges related to the coronavirus outbreak. The page contains programming and content to assist clients and other interested parties across multiple areas of operations, including labor and unemployment, retailing, and supply chain management, among others.