OVERVIEW

Sierra represents clients in complex, high-stakes commercial litigation, developing tailored strategies to reach the best resolution possible.

With a passion for the challenge of solving difficult problems, Sierra was drawn to litigation from the beginning of her career—the more complicated, the better. She focuses her practice on representing sophisticated organizations with intricate structures in high-value matters and bet-the-company cases.

From trade secret litigation to healthcare and medical defense to challenges in the food systems industries, Sierra's practice covers a wide breadth of litigation. Her experience navigating the complex world of commercial litigation allows her to assist each client with their unique needs. Sierra has handled both bench and jury trials, as well as settlement negotiations.

Known as a highly collaborative professional, Sierra sees legal representation as a partnership. She works closely with in-house teams so that litigation strategies are in line with clients' goals and needs, and she is also skilled at working with opposing counsel when appropriate to negotiate resolutions. Sierra readily understands the stress of litigation, and she walks alongside clients to help them make the best decisions for their businesses, even in moments of high emotions. She also aims to ensure that all representation and strategies are cost-effective for clients.
