OVERVIEW

Mike draws on a strong background in state healthcare public policy while guiding clients through the complex regulatory and political landscape of healthcare law.

He advises healthcare providers on administrative law, government investigations, mergers and acquisitions, governance and public policy. Mike's clients include local governments and healthcare providers and professionals.

Mike has extensive experience with mergers and acquisitions in the home health space and can advise clients at every step of the process, from start to finish. Mike prepares transaction documents, runs due diligence, reviews regulatory compliance issues, assists with licensing, and updates Medicare and Medicaid enrollments.

But Mike's favorite activity in his healthcare practice involves working to change state healthcare policy. His interest in combining law, politics and policy was ignited while serving as general counsel for the Texas Legislature, and he continues to hone his interest and maintain his involvement in policymaking for current clients.

"Michael Crowe is very knowledgeable, especially within long-term care."

Community Leadership

TALA provides a forum to help people understand the options offered by assisted living. Mike began working with the organization as a lobbyist in 2001 and has supported TALA in its mission ever since. He also has served on the board of directors since 2007.

Mike helps set policy agenda and achieve policy goals, writes legislation and regulations, testifies on policy matters and routinely interacts with the Texas Legislature and lead officials for Texas healthcare agencies. Specifically, Mike helped secure private accreditation of assisted living communities, negotiated the scope of practice of skilled nursing in these facilities and began reform for an informal dispute resolution program. He also helped secure tort reform for assisted living providers.
