OVERVIEW

With more than a decade of experience in healthcare regulatory, compliance, and litigation, Ashley represents clients in a wide array of medical staff matters, peer and professional review activities, and regulatory enforcement proceedings.

Ashley's primary practice focuses on representing physicians, physician groups, hospitals, and health systems in navigating complex medical staff issues, peer review proceedings, credentialing matters, and regulatory controversies. She has first chaired more than 20 trials to verdict in state and federal courts and routinely defends healthcare clients in administrative proceedings before state and federal enforcement agencies. In addition, Ashley assists with developing and revising medical staff bylaws, policies, and procedures, and regularly advises healthcare clients on operational strategies, contract issues, and risk management. Her litigation background and experience on both the physician and facility sides provide her with unique insight for comprehensive assessment and solution-oriented approaches to complicated healthcare questions.
