OVERVIEW

As the leader who oversees all financial activities at the firm, Tim plays a key role in Husch Blackwell's growth and success.

Tim is ultimately responsible for the integrity of financial information and systems for the firm and directing the firm's overall financial policies. He provides financial updates to the Executive Board and works closely with leadership across the firm to maximize opportunities that may influence the firm's financial performance, achieve its strategic goals and continue its ongoing growth trajectory.

Since Tim has been with the firm for more than 30 years, he has a historical perspective that helps create a bridge between the past and present. He finds it rewarding to see the firm expand its geographic footprint and achieve profitable growth, while being an integral part of the leadership team.

Tim also continues to grow and learn in his own role as CFO. With the wisdom he has attained over the years, he mentors others at the firm to help them progress in their careers. He also serves as executive sponsor of HB Pride, the firm's LGBTQIA+ Employee Resource Group.

Community Leadership

While living in St. Louis, Tim was involved in organizing a gay competitive volleyball league, which evolved into a gay sports organization known as Team St. Louis. The idea was to create a healthy way for people in the gay and lesbian community to meet – through sports.
