OVERVIEW

Amy has a passion for assisting her clients with resolving complex litigation matters, while keeping their priorities at the center of her practice.

Amy's practice focuses on representing clients in litigation disputes across industries, including healthcare, education, real estate, construction, manufacturing and the financial sector. She has represented clients in both state and federal courts, as well as in alternative forms of dispute resolution. Amy has handled cases from beginning to end, including discovery, expert reports, motion practice and hearings. Known as a gifted writer, Amy is also appreciated for working closely with clients, helping them gain comfort and familiarity as they navigate a complex legal system.

Amy has extensive experience and knowledge in assisting clients in tax disputes. She has represented clients in both administrative and circuit court proceedings to successfully challenge and win reductions in excessive or unlawful tax bills.

A native of Kenosha, Amy enjoys practicing law close to her family.
