OVERVIEW

Anne supports the firm's Commercial Litigation team.

Anne discovered a passion for the law during an undergraduate internship on Capitol Hill. After joining the firm in 2016, she learned she especially enjoyed commercial litigation, thanks to the variety of cases and the legal research often required. Anne has worked on matters as diverse as labor and employment, breach of contract, bankruptcy, fraudulent conveyance, lease disputes, premises liability, professional malpractice and construction litigation.

As a paralegal assistant, Anne handles legal research, initial preparation of pleadings, database management and case management. Much of her time is devoted to supporting the client service team for a multinational financial technology company. Anne especially enjoys cases that provide opportunities to dig into legal research and is excited when a matter, its details or its filing requirements present new challenges.

With a reputation for always being helpful, Anne is perpetually looking for ways to be useful to clients and to the team. Clients can be confident that minute details will be taken care of—and taken care of correctly.
