OVERVIEW

Clients rely on Brent to handle complex corporate and financing transactions in the midst of government regulations.

Brent has nearly a quarter century of experience assisting clients in such highly regulated industries as cannabis, renewable energy, and government contracts. A highly qualified transactional attorney, he has the skills to ensure a deal closes at maximum value to the client—as well as the legal knowledge to help clients remain in compliance with industry regulations throughout a merger, acquisition, divestiture, joint venture, or financing deal. Over the course of his career, Brent has overseen transactions with an aggregate deal value of more than $20 billion.

Brent first cut his teeth on transactions in the energy world, representing developers and contractors as they acquired financing. He continues to practice extensively in the sector, with a focus on solar projects. Since the legalization of cannabis in Maryland, he has also devoted a significant portion of his practice to assisting cannabis companies with purchases, sales, restructurings, and financing, as well as to representation of the banks and other lenders supporting the industry. With a practice that has grown as the industry has matured, Brent has represented lenders in placing more than $100 million in loans to local, single state, and multi-state cannabis cultivators, distributors, and dispensaries. He also serves as a key member of the firm's Ag Finance practice group, which represents lenders and borrowers at all phases of ag finance transactions.

In addition to his experience with energy and cannabis clients, Brent is also highly knowledgeable about best practices involved in corporate transactions for government contractors. He has worked with consulting, defense, and national security contractors and is extensively familiar with various clearance levels for both individuals and locations. Brent routinely assists government contractors through mergers, acquisitions, divestitures, and financing transactions, simultaneously providing counsel on the implications of the transaction for existing and future contracts as well as for security clearances.

After more than two decades handling transactions for highly regulated industries, Brent knows his field inside and out. He thrives on the intricacy of the deals and the government regulations involved, and he has a gift for making complex matters straightforward and simple for clients to understand. Brent's goal is to assist clients in closing the transactions necessary to move their businesses forward, while helping them make educated decisions about the risks and benefits inherent in their industries.
