OVERVIEW

Christiana represents clients in complex commercial litigation matters.

Christiana's career journey began during a college trip to a historic courthouse in London, where she was fascinated by observing a trial. The intellectual nature of the work, the challenge of creating compelling arguments, and the potential to make a real impact inspired her to pursue a legal career.

In law school, Christiana was drawn to the philosophy of law and the opportunity to explore constitutional issues. She enjoyed being an assistant for a legal writing professor and coaching the undergrad mock trial team, experiences that helped her become more comfortable with the basics of law and find joy in guiding new law students.

Christiana's interest in commercial litigation was sparked by the fascinating and complex process of preparing for and conducting a trial. She also values the wide range of possibilities this practice area offers and the constant opportunities to learn something new. As a summer associate at the firm, she assisted with cases in a wide variety of industries, including healthcare, education, and construction.

Now a fully qualified attorney, Christiana is known for her strong communication skills and empathy. She is committed to ensuring that clients feel heard and understood. Her knack for breaking down complex concepts and presenting information in an accessible way, coupled with her collaborative and competitive spirit, make her an asset to any team.
