OVERVIEW

Kevin focuses on real estate matters, particularly in the renewable energy sector.

Kevin's decision to pursue a legal career was driven by his passion for research, writing, and advocacy. As a law student, Kevin discovered a strong interest in property courses and was quickly drawn to the tangible impact of real estate law, as well as to the collaborative nature of the field. While attending law school, Kevin served as the general administrative editor for the Houston Business and Tax Law Journal and was a teaching assistant for property.

During his time as a summer associate at Husch Blackwell, Kevin worked on a variety of commercial litigation projects, particularly those in the public law practice area involving condemnation proceedings. He also took an interest in transactional matters after working on several real estate projects and a pro bono matter.

Now a fully qualified attorney, Kevin focuses on traditional real estate and the burgeoning renewable energy sector. He enjoys working with transactions from start to finish and facilitating deals for clients.

Known for his commitment to achieving positive outcomes, Kevin is a zealous advocate who takes his role seriously. He believes in maintaining open lines of communication and tailors his approach to meet each client's unique needs.
