

ASBESTOS LITIGATION

Our asbestos litigation attorneys are recognized innovators when aligning client objectives against risk profile, probable outcomes, and paths to resolution to ensure our clients get the greatest return on their investment. We coordinate asbestos litigation nationally using proprietary technology and an award-winning business solutions approach built specifically to attack the unique challenges of asbestos litigation. With a team of over 100 toxic tort attorneys and paralegals working out of more than 20 U.S. offices, Husch Blackwell has the depth and experience to scale agile teams customized to defend portfolios of any size or complexity. Our toxic tort practice also includes our award-winning Innovāt Alliance National Asbestos Defense Team, a national coordinating counsel model that forms a particularly powerful platform in the defense of large portfolios of asbestos litigation.

Employing novel business methods, technology, and strategies, we routinely help insurers and companies achieve better outcomes while drastically reducing claims inventories, legal spend, and risk. Our business model concentrates resources to meet the highest threats and generate the greatest impact for our clients while employing strategies to quickly eliminate the meritless claims that can unnecessarily consume time and money. Our seasoned asbestos litigation team executes well-defined case plans to aggressively attack claims and achieve the best possible result in each matter. Decades of experience working closely with recognized experts in the medical and scientific disciplines at issue in this litigation enables our asbestos litigation attorneys to be
